A simple, affordable and smart repository that will transform your company’s legal information from a burden into a strategic advantage.
In-house lawyers are being asked to play a more strategic role, with more up-front involvement in business decisions.

But strategic players just cannot get by with the spreadsheets, shared drives or generic software they’re using today.

They need a simple and affordable way to extract value from all their legal information, manage risk and collaborate with other departments.
STORE
Easily organize your key contracts, company documents, compliance policies and regulations in one central place.

FIND
Get easy, instant access to the information with powerful Google-style searches.

SUMMARIZE
Make key information from long documents more visible and understandable to the whole organization.

TRACK
Set reminders and alerts to help you manage risk.

REPORT
Generate detailed reports that can provide the management information your team and your executives need.

SHARE
Give permission-based access to different departments to allow them to see the information that helps them do their jobs better.

EMPOWER
Set up self-service portals to enable different departments to manage their own legal affairs, with your legal oversight.

your smart legal repository

A simple, affordable and secure way to extract value from all your legal information, manage risk and collaborate with other departments.
effacts helps you be a strategic business partner effacts frees up your time from small, low-value work so you and your team can focus on the big strategic decisions.

effacts gives you instant and accurate management information to help you and your company make better decisions.

effacts empowers your whole organization to be more legally savvy.
How can you use effacts to transform your company’s legal information into a strategic advantage?

I need an up-to-date structure of our legal entities at all times. effacts makes that possible. And with a lot less work than before. With effacts, I can link all the information together: shareholders, companies, appointments, contracts and more. When I make a change in one place, the system updates everywhere. I don’t have to do it over again. It’s automatic.

Claudia Jacobs, Privacy Officer & Legal Officer, Vebego International

Use effacts to have company information on hand, whenever you need it.

Avoid wasting precious time digging through folder after folder to pinpoint the right information. effacts puts all your information right at your fingertips.

Store, access and manage your company documents in one central place

- Certificates of incorporation
- Organizational charts
- Shareholder information
- Company officers and directors
- Business registrations and licenses

Control officer records

Keep track of officers’ and directors’ responsibilities - and see a snapshot of how this has changed at different points in time.
We used to use Excel for everything. Everyone around the world used to prepare their Excel files in different and random ways. It was a nightmare taking this unstructured data and producing reports for our Board of Directors. With effacts, the data is structured and available at the touch of a button.

Use effacts to reduce risk.
If you’re using calendars or spreadsheets to remind you of important dates, there’s a risk you could miss an important deadline and incur a hefty penalty. effacts tracks all your important dates so you never miss that deadline.

Reduce the risk associated with missing a contract deadline
Set timely email alerts for all your contracts so that you and your team don’t get caught off-guard by costly auto-renewals.

Avoid penalties by filing corporate returns on time
Set reminders to ensure that all your companies are filing corporate registrations and licenses on time.

Use effacts to turn your legal information into a valuable business asset.
Spreadsheets don’t give you the detailed management view you need. With effacts, you always have an instant view of where the risks and opportunities are.

Generate detailed management information at the touch of a button
Create detailed, customized reports that you can share across the organization to show upcoming notice periods, or track missing signatures. Report on contracts by value, department, customer or supplier.

Prepare efficiently for due diligence and audit
Easily locate and compile articles of incorporation, information about the issuance and current ownership of your company’s stock, as well as customer and supplier agreements.

I can’t imagine a legal life now without effacts.

Use effacts to empower your entire organization to be more legally and commercially savvy, but still maintain legal oversight.

Spreadsheets and filing systems are not easy to share. effacts makes it easy to collaborate with and empower other departments.

Allow other teams the access to the legal information they need, when they need it

Give multiple business units access to their own contracts, and only their own contracts, so you don’t need to answer every last-minute request yourself.

Make it simpler for other teams to understand key information

Display key information about contracts to other departments, such as end dates, signatories and key terms, so they can better manage commercial relationships.

Enable business units to self-serve

Allow the rest of the organization to generate pre-approved forms such as NDAs (Non Disclosure Agreements) and contracts that comply with legally approved language and thresholds, without you having to act as the data entry individual.

Other people in the company have access to the information they need without contacting us. Not only has this improved our productivity, but theirs too, because they can retrieve the information they need faster.

We implemented effacts in a very short time frame. After we implemented it, it only took about 2 weeks to get everyone using it. From previous experience, I expected it to be much more difficult to get my colleagues using it. Usually they’d complain that it’s too difficult. But that wasn’t the case with effacts. It’s so easy to use. 50 users worldwide find it so self-explanatory.
