Estate and Gift tax law is highly complex and constantly changing. It's difficult to determine what regulations and guidance were in place at a particular point-in-time and keep on top of evolving changes. Estate & Gift Tax Plus, a new online solution from Wolters Kluwer, lets you easily compare law changes between two points-in-time for faster, more accurate research. Clear redlining capabilities instantly present law changes for better understanding so you can accurately assess client impact.

Leveraging the extensive, industry-leading content of Wolters Kluwer’s Federal Estate and Gift Tax Reporter, Estate and Gift Tax Plus provides a centralized location for tax professionals to efficiently monitor and understand statutory and regulatory changes.

Redlining Comparison Tool
Estate & Gift Tax Plus clearly redlines law changes to show the differences between estate and gift tax laws, regulations, and commentary for one period to another, dating back to 2016 and on a continual basis going forward. Additionally, the IRC archives for estate and gift dates back to 1954.

Point-in-Time Analysis
Estate & Gift Tax Plus instantly presents changes in laws, guidance, and related cases in point-in-time, which enables faster, more accurate research. Explanations reduce the complexity of regulatory change so you can accurately assess the impact.

Calendar Features
Estate & Gift Tax Plus allows professionals to see a particular version of the law in place at a specific point-in-time as well as related material, including regulations and guidance, relevant to that specific point-in-time.

Redlining To Compare Versions of Regulations and Guidance: Due to the volume of changes in the Tax Code, it is difficult to determine what regulations and guidance were in place at any point-in-time, and this makes comparing them to assess the changes challenging. Estate & Gift Tax Plus exclusively offers practitioners the ability to identify and compare versions of regulations and guidance by redlining the specific changes at a given date or over time.

Identify when changes in regulations occurred over time, and understand the specific changes in regulations with redlining so you can visually see the differences in regulations and guidance between any two points-in-time or over time.

Point-In-Time Navigation: The Tax Code is subject to constant change and increasingly complex regulations. The speed of change increases the risk on exactly when a change took place. Estate & Gift Tax Plus features an exclusive Point-in-Time Navigation to help professionals find the right information in the right context so they avoid misinterpretation of a rule.

By selecting the date within the system, the tax professional can see the particular version in place at that point-in-time.
Calendar: Estate & Gift Tax Plus exclusively offers a calendar that allows professionals to navigate related material at a point-in-time with the assurance that they are viewing the exact material for the date under review.

Filter Document Types: Professionals can apply filters for the related information and see the relevant cases or guidance issued by regulators at a specific point-in-time. This exclusive feature ensures professionals are not missing any important information to interpret a rule relative to that time frame.
